

PULITZER PRIZES FOR LIBELLING ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The grand jury of the District of Columbia this afternoon reported indictments charging criminal libel against the owners and responsible editors of the New York World and its daughter News on account of the recent publication in these papers reflecting upon President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Root, Charles P. Taft, Douglas H. Davis and William Brewster, in connection with the purchase of the Panama canal.

There is no indication of the count against the Press Publishing Company of which the World is a part.

After an investigation of the sensational charges made against articles of the World by Mrs. Mary M. Fisher, formerly an expert stenographer in the Department, Dr. Samuel H. Durgin, president of the board, reported to Mayor Hibbard today that there was no foundation for the young woman's statement.

The charges were in the form of a diary of her daily life while employed in the city district. Mrs. Fisher had known that she had been libeled by her associates and that the use in the department of the name of the girl with the name of herself, and she would have been killed if she had not objected.

Dr. Morgan began an investigation and his reply is in the form of a letter to Mrs. Fisher, in which he says:

"The commission has made a full investigation of each and every charge and that in no single instance was the charge substantiated."

Dr. Morgan said that he had been told that when Mrs. Fisher had been killed alone.

While Mrs. Fisher was on the stand Attorney Washington for the defense and for the State checked, and for a time a fast fight seemed imminent. Judge Hibbard, however, interrupted and ordered the case to be closed.

Dr. Morgan said that he had been told that when Mrs. Fisher had been killed alone.

BARRELS OF CASH TO MAINE NET MAYOR

"Boston is on the eve of one of the largest money fights in its history," declared Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today when he received the report from the legislative committee on Election Laws.

"Barrels of money are going to be spent," he continued. "The people ought to know the exact amount and the source from which it came before they cast their votes. Three of the candidates for Mayor have been known to have thousands of dollars pledged to them."

"One of them expects to spend $25,000. Two thousand of that is already in sight. The two others will spend probably more than that."

"A candidate for Mayor recently spent $80,000 in his fight before the primaries. The most I can expect of campaign money is that it will be paid for by the people."

Mr. Gately and Representative John J. Hayes of Charlestown argued for the latter's bill to require political candidates to disclose the source of their campaign funds.

BOSTON AMERICAN

VOL. 5—No. 329, BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1909. ONE CENT

TEHERAN, Feb. 17.—Delayed messages received to-day from the Provincial authorities of Luristan Province say that sixty villages were destroyed and 6,000 people killed in an earthquake, January 23.

The delay in getting news of the quake was due to the impossibility of the local and the state of the roads that reached the people.

The quake was one concerning which there has been much speculation. Several of the villages reported the quake, but none could locate the quake's locality.

The instruments showed that the quake was more violent than that which struck Italy and California last December.

At least 12,000 people were killed and the inhabitants, who are destitute, are looking to the Government for immediate aid.

The earthquake covered an enormous area of sparsely populated country and nearly every village in the province was affected.

The Province of Luristan is in the inaccessible mountainous regions of Western Persia, bordering upon Arabia and Khorasan. It is watered by the Karun. The inhabitants are chiefly Bakhtiari, part of the Iranian people called Lurs.

8 P. M. Edition "CY" YOUNG'S FAREWELL MESSAGE TO BOSTON FANS

"Cy" Young, the idol of Boston "fans," has been sold to the Cleveland team. There were rumors to-day that Young was angry because of the exchange, and that he would retire from baseball. Young himself dispels this rumor in the following message dictated by him over the telephone from his farm at Paoli, Ohio:

"By long distance telephone, from Paoli, Ohio, via Cleveland, to the Boston American."

"If they want me for the Cleveland club I can see no objection to my playing there. I am satisfied if the club owners are. I don't know how long I may be able to pitch effectively, but I feel to-day as good as I ever was in my life."

"I will be forty-two years old come next March, and I have been pitching ball for nineteen years. There is an end of everything, but I don't feel that my end has come yet."

"Boston is a grand old town and I feel sorry to leave it, but I love Cleveland, too, and I will do my best for Lajoie and his team."

"Tell the Boston fans for me that if Cleveland doesn't win the pennant I hope Boston does."

"For details of the sale of Young to Cleveland see sporting page."

REPEAT VOWS TO REVEAL

One of the most dramatic episodes of the Chapman-Alexander revival campaign occurred today at the afternoon conference in the Broadland street M. Church. Looking at the clock Mr. Chapman saw a little after 11 o'clock.

"Listen," said he, "on October 17, 1902, at five minutes past 11 o'clock, I dedicated myself anew to Christ. I want all you ministers to consecrate yourselves again. There were about 200 ministers present, and all dropped to their knees and renewed themselves again to the service of the Lord."

Kneel at His Bidding.
It was a wonderful picture. The ministers knelt at the altar steps, to the strains and in the pews.

"I have I prepared to the best of my ability," said Mr. Chapman, "to have I not done my best for the city?"

The many young ministers used to sing were heard in the choir, preliminary service at Tremont Temple.

Rev. Robert Fennell, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Highland, was, at the platform.

In his mail to-day Mr. Alexander received the following letter:

Letter From Prison.
"Dear Mr. Alexander—Prison. It is very interesting to know that the news of the good work you are doing in Boston is one of the things that I have heard of in my prison life."

RENEW WAR FOR 80-CENT GAS IN CHARLESTON

The movement for 80-cent gas in Charleston will be pushed along a few more weeks.

One Wednesday of next week a public hearing on House bill No. 447 will be held before the legislative committee on public utilities.

The hearing will be held in the House chamber at 4:45 and is announced to begin at 5 p. m.

This bill was introduced by Representative John J. Hayes of Charleston. It contains the first section, making it unlawful for any gas company to charge a rate higher than 80 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Section one provides that after August 1, 1909, no gas company shall charge a rate higher than 80 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The crowd in the committee room next Wednesday will not be all Charlestonians. Representative Woodruff, of East Boston, also introduced bills for similar legislation in his district, asking for no more than 80 cents.

The body of John B. Moran rested last night from 10:30 to 11 o'clock in the day. The pathetic note that pervaded the scene at the South station as the body containing the dead was transferred from the baggage car to the undertaker's wagon was sounded by the bagpipers.

"We'll," he exclaimed with a look of genuine sorrow on his face, "there is a task. He was a good friend to the poor and he wasn't scared to go after the rich."

The train bringing the body of the man who died was more than two miles long. It had run into the largest that served the western country and reached New England. Edward J. Smith, of John's and a representative of the American Union, was in the train.

Only a few of the friends of the late John B. Moran were in the train. The crowd would reach the South station at about 10:30 o'clock.

At the station were John J. Hayes, James A. Watson, one of the former district attorney's staunchest friends, and several other friends.

The crowd was included in a house California oak box with other bands. On the left side of the baggage car was a small platform and that apparently contained the effects of the dead man.

The transfer of the body to the undertaker's wagon was a very quiet affair. The friends of the dead man were in the train.

PAYS $230 FOR GOLD DOLLAR OF 1861

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—A gold dollar of 1861, which was sold for $230, was the highest price ever paid for a gold dollar.

WALL STREET. New York, Feb. 17.—Most important of the news developed in the semi-official report that J. P. Morgan & Co. have agreed to purchase the Erie Railroad for $10,000,000 cash, for reorganization of the Interborough-Metropolitan Railroad Company. Raising of this money will require a mortgage on the Erie property by Morgan, during the peak of 1907, of a large volume of Interborough-Metropolitan bonds from August Belmont & Co. Investment for the Morgan firm, and more for the Belmonts, will be made in the Erie property. After the period of assessment is over, the bonds will be sold at a profit, expected to become eventually respectable.

Further depression in the price of the Erie bonds is not to be expected, because there will be many people who will be anxious to get them. The sale must be made. The courts are clearing up the title, and the bonds will be sold in order to turn over the property to the reorganized company in a clean condition.

that $75,000,000 of bonds would be issued as soon as Mr. Harriman returns. Instead of $100,000,000. The "Money" is beginning to figure more and more in the minds of the Ohio stock factors. It is close to the Hawley interests, are of opinion that Chesapeake & Ohio stock will be more considerably higher before all the facts are known.

It appears that many of the schedules especially on stock are from 20 to 30 per cent. higher than what would afford protection. Schedules that stand at 40 per cent. will be reduced to 10 per cent., because 10 per cent. will bar out foreign manufacturers effectively. The reformers think the tariff is to be on the basis of cutting off the surplus protection. The not result, however, will be to leave these funds in exactly the position they now occupy, and the Government will have to finance late in the Summer. The new money will not cut deep enough to increase exports.

The money market should be watched with particular interest for the next few weeks, when it will be possible to see any visible sign of any substantial revival in trade and business and the consequent increase in the demand for money. The presence or absence of out-of-town money in this market will be an indication of the state of business in the interior. When there is a rise in the demand for money, the balances that have been sent on here by country banks for investment will be withdrawn, and the money market will be tight. When will the tariff be adjusted? At the present time, the tariff is being adjusted in a piecemeal fashion. The government has brought a large supply of loanable funds here, and the consequence has been that any influence for higher money wages has been nullified.

There is some expectation by local banking institutions, however, of a better arrangement for the tariff in the near future. They are inclined to sacrifice perfect business rather than spoil their market later on. In other words, while loaning money to the government for short periods they are making no concession for the longer maturities.

Although tariff raising seems the cause for caution by business men, the reason is their desire to wait until the crops are in. The tariff has no longer a variety of serious possibilities on Wall Street. A definite understanding has been

Oh, we need a censor of public morals good and plenty! But that censor should be in every home, in the person of a woman who has nerve and backbone enough to manage her own children, and to stand up and fight the strong-willed young crooks to a finish, and to decide if the plays they may see, the books they may read, the companions with whom they may associate, the very style of clothes they may wear. And, above all, the things they may not do or see.

A Good Plan for Purifying Human Speech

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

MR. JOHN BEAL MEAD, of Indiana, is superintendent of an organization known as The Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The Ideal of this association is worthy of universal attention. It is the idea of purifying human speech.

To suppress everything that is base, vulgar, unkind or thoughtless in the way of speech, to the same first and afterward in social and domestic life, to suppress it by that which is noble, gracious, suppliant it and consensually, will do much toward making birth a better and sweeter place for the few of us.

In his little prospectus, Mr. Mead suggests that many people desire to do good in the world, but see no way to direct their efforts.

"Sealed Lips" opens an avenue of usefulness, with small outlay and large results.

This movement was the result of a New Year resolution by the founder to be about a more guarded and generous habit.

of speech and to avoid idle and evil language.

Value of Self-Restraint

It appealed to him as a "self-clearing" measure, as he expresses it, and appealed with such force and fervency that he set about forming his society for the service of mankind. He says of the movement: "There are but few people that do not recognize the widespread and virulent desecration which marks our common speech; but all do not realize the extent of the blighting and destroying influence.

"The tongue that is the office, is the author of much confusion and harm. When unrestrained and harsh it sows the bitter passions and becomes an instrument of evil; when restrained and mild it sows the pure affections and becomes an instrument of good; in order, therefore, that the tongue contribute to our wellbeing it is useful that it should be restrained in favor of the higher and nobler purposes."

"The Fellowship of Sealed Lips affords such a restraint—and is an entirely efficient and practical way. 'If thou hast

This is the course recommended by wise men. Keep back the unkind, vicious vulgar word; crush it in embryo; the infant it escapes your lips it becomes fruitful and responsibility is incurred.

The conditions are simple and easy. You have only to decide for lip purgits as indicated by the following declaration: "I am purposed that my mouth shall not be strengthened." It is not a pledge, but the declaration with which you certify by subscription your name.

It matters not whether you indulge in lip-decoration. It is your duty openly to declare against it, and by word and example to influence those who see you. If you are taking your stand thus against it, you will not only strengthen your own purpose but will also strengthen the purpose of others.

It would be well for this reader to ask

There are so many things told and said to all of us, which would not be spoken if we first asked ourselves these three questions and answered them honestly.

Many things are true which are neither kind nor necessary for us to say.

Other things are true and unkind, yet necessary.

Many things are true, vulgar and coarse in language which spoils so much of human companionship, there is the idle, the senseless, the silly and the slovenly speech, used so commonly by many intelligent and

They Are the Saddest Proof of Slavery's Effect on the Mind
Copyright, 1900, by American Journal-Examiner

The saddest sight in the Old South was the faithful, earnest, honest colored man THAT DIDN'T WANT TO BE FREE.

He had been a slave all his life. His food was bought for him. His clothes were bought. he had no rent to pay. no taxes to think of. It was true that he had nothing to say about the laws. It was true that he carried the heavy load and couldn't complain.

But when freedom was offered to him HE DIDN'T WANT IT. He whined about his "old massa." He didn't like to face the idea of a future of responsibilities.

The woman who opposes equal rights is just exactly like that poor Black man. You could not blame him, and you can't blame her.

On certain weak minds, slavery has a very depressing effect. Faculties that we haven't used become dormant or they disappear. And we are filled with dread at the idea of thinking for ourselves.

A bird that has been in a cage for years is frightened when set free, almost afraid to fly. That is the trouble with some good women that fear the vote. They have lived so long with somebody else telling them what they CAN do and what they CAN'T do that they are afraid of the idea of liberty.

But they ought to get over that, they ought to realize that government is no longer a matter of brute force, but a matter of MORAL CHARACTER. They know that moral character is stronger in women than in men. They know that men are no better than they ought to be, and that if women are badly treated, and underpaid proportionately, IT IS BECAUSE THEY HAVE NO VOTE TO DEFEND THEMSELVES WITH.

There is no use quarreling with or speaking unkindly to the women that oppose equal rights. A majority of them are earnest, good, well-meaning women. They are simply afraid of what is NEW. They belong to the class of women that didn't like the bicycle when it came in, that were frightened when they heard of the first elevator running up inside of a high building. They are a timid kind.

There are some, also, that oppose equal rights and deserve less consideration. Many women, in whom the noblest qualities do not dominate, would rather get things by COAXING AND SEVERITY than by merit. Some women are natural born wheedlers. They find life easy and simple when they can get what they want by begging or hinting, or other displays of servility.

The real woman is the woman who wants to do her share. She will have her way and her chance eventually.

The slaves are free in spite of the fact that some very amiable black gentlemen didn't like the idea.

AND WOMEN WILL BE FREE BEFORE LONG IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT SOME VERY NICE, TIMID, GENTLE SAMPLES OF WOMANKIND OPPOSE THEIR OWN FREEDOM.

The wife is urged by the lady that she may marry again, but would choose a different type of man; the satisfied failure of the gentleman is to be relieved to find that she is chosen one; the commonest of the still husband that the other man would be a man selection and entirely different from the one he has just been judged to ask a few leading questions and throw the divorce case of the husband of civility. It is based on the fundamental rule of the behavior of the fighting eye toward the beautiful and non-combatant sex that a man cannot be a gentleman and knowingly ignore his wife's wishes.

He may lose his wife, and losing her may terribly wound his spirit, but her husband is not a man of honor without her consent.

The wife's attitude in itself is completely ground for divorce according to the laws of the state. The divorce requires that the husband shall let her be the plaintiff.

Freedom can come only as a penalty inflicted on the defendant. Thus an unwritten law of divorce has become an institution.
